The final product which will include the summary document, an implementation strategy and a web based planners toolkit, is scheduled to for the Policy Council in March 2011.
- Several studies are underway or forthcoming. A consultant has completed a report on the financial-institutional barriers to higher density development and to recommend strategies to overcome these barriers.
- In addition, an RFP is expected to be released in 2010-11 to study the two additional aspects of higher density development. The first part will examine the cost/benefit to the public of sprawl vs. more compact (higher density) development. As part of the deliverables for the first part, the consultant will develop a tool that local planners can use to assess the cost of different types of developments. The second part of the study will examine the marketability of different types of development. The outcome should help inform the development community about what is marketable in the current climate of higher density development planning.

WE 411 – Farmland Conservation Model Program

Objective: Develop a plan, strategy, and program to conserve prime agricultural lands in the Central Valley. The Program will build upon initial activities to identify farmlands of strategic importance, and to develop a program to protect farmlands that is consistent with long term planning goals that maintain agriculture as a key economic and cultural force in the region. The program is first intended for the benefit of Fresno County and subsequently, the other counties making up the San Joaquin Valley.

Farmland Conservation Model Program Steering Committee members first met in June of 2007. Comprised of key stakeholders in Fresno County, steering committee members include Fresno County, the City of Fresno, the City of Clovis, the Fresno County Farm Bureau, and others. The purpose of the Farmland Conservation Model Program Steering Committee is to oversee the daily activities for implementing the Farmland Conversation Model Program. Also involved in the development of the plan is an advisory board comprised of stakeholders from governmental, the agricultural industry, the environmental and development community, amongst others that are involved in agriculture matters on regular basis that advised the Steering Committee on issues of importance to agriculture in Fresno County.

The deliverables for the Farmland Conservation Model Program include:

- Devise an approach to identifying “strategic” farmland
- Public Input
- Document factors affecting the conversion of farmlands
- Create a toolbox for decision makers to implement farmland conservation in Fresno County
- Provide a series of recommendations based upon the finding of this process
- Prepare a final report.

Accomplishments: While the Draft Farmland Conservation Model Program Report for Fresno County was released for public review on January 16, 2009, the public comment period was prolonged indefinitely in order to engage in discussions with stakeholders. Key stakeholders within the agricultural community in Fresno County expressed their dissatisfaction with the recommendations outlined in the draft report. A couple of meetings were held with groups representing the agricultural community and the decision was made to utilize the services of Dr. Gary Manross, a consultant to Fresno COG. Dr. Manross has been meeting with key stakeholders individually in to find a point of agreement between stakeholders. The information gathered in this process will in part serve as the basis for the recommendations outlined in the final Farmland Conservation Model Program for Fresno County to be released in the near future

Dr. Manross has completed the interview process with leading agricultural stakeholders. Many agricultural stakeholders were interviewed, some of them more than once. Out of the interview process, a model for Farmland Conservation emerged that seems viable to pursue. The next step in the development of a model for the Farmland Conservation Model Program, Dr. Manross will conduct a targeted public opinion survey to gauge support of key points identified in the meeting with stakeholders. WE 412 – Mid Valley Multi-Modal Partnership

Objective: A re-scope has been submitted to Caltrans for this project. The key idea is provide for a balanced long-term land use plan that will respect and support the integrity of the Highway 99 as a mainline artery in the Central Valley. The planning process will include detailed analysis of the effects of trends on congestion in the Highway 99 corridor as well as options for reducing future congestion by shifting the focus of new development away from the Westside, promoting alternative modes of travel and mixed use development, and providing incentives for infill and redevelopment.

Caltrans' planning objectives will be integrated into the General Plan Update, with additional analysis of how regional transportation service objectives can best be met while also attaining City goals for economic development, fiscal balance, housing affordability, sustainability and healthy communities.

Accomplishments: The Fresno Council of Governments, the City of Fresno and the County of Fresno, have drafted a modest scope change to the Phase II FMTK, Multi-Modal System Partnership Grant from Caltrans. The changes are a result of the direct outcomes of the Phase I study itself as well as ongoing public outreach efforts.

Recently, Phase III FMTK, Multi-Modal System Partnership Grant was completed that was based, in part upon phases I and II submitted earlier. Phase III is broader in scope and in terms of stakeholders and was recently submitted to Caltrans for their consideration. Initial feedback from Caltrans was that it was received favorably with some recommended changes to the scope of the project that have since been implemented. [SOBRADO]
